

Getting ready for the coming low-carbon economy - businesses

1. Be aware and understand the issues
2. Measure your carbon footprint
3. Make a plan to reduce your footprint, then do it
 - Educate and get buy-in from your staff
4. Reduce the risks and exploit the opportunities
5. Continually audit and improve

Useful references for everyone

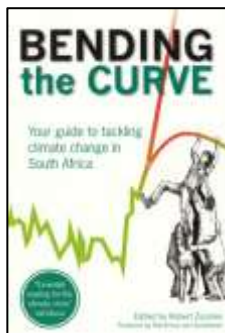

Tackling climate change in South Africa

Bending the Curve by Robert Zippies

Publisher Africa Geographic

021-762-2180

ISBN 978-0-620-42572-8

Weekly news

Engineering News magazine (South Africa)

and free subscription to daily e-news on newsdesk@engineeringnews.co.za

Climate science

Royal Society UK

<http://royalsociety.org/Climate-Change/>

Climate science

National Aeronautics and Space Administration

<http://earthobservatory.nasa.gov/Features/GlobalWarming/printall.php>

Climate matters

GreenBiz .com

“Business voice of the green economy”

and free subscription to daily e-news on

<http://www.greenbiz.com/>

Climate and energy matters

25 Degrees (South Africa)

<http://www.25degrees.net>

How to reduce your electricity account

City Power Johannesburg

<http://www.citypower.co.za/tips/reduce%20electricity%20account.pdf>

Dave Collins dave.collins2@gmail.com 083-659-1712

Dave Collins consults on climate change response strategies to many JSE top 100 companies, to the Southern African coal industry and to various industry groupings. He has recently appeared on TV and radio talk-shows on climate change and the energy crisis.

